

As a consumer, the number of soliciting phone calls are so significant that answering the phone becomes an issue of contention in my household. I did not pay for my phone line for solicitors which also include banks, credit card companies, etc., to call me when it is not an emergency, and call me for promotions. It is becoming unbearable to receive these phone calls. Please allow consumers to have a choice if they want or don't want to receive these calls. Please don't allow these companies to have the right to impose on my privacy at home by calling for non emergency reasons.
